Council examines, revises code

By JEFF BROWN
PAHOKEE - Pahokee will stick with its own animal ordinances and may schedule a monthly trash collection day to alleviate problems with incinerating garbage.

The city council met in a special workshop session prior to its regular meeting Tuesday, July 12 and reviewed several sections of the code of ordinances in an effort to revise it and get an updated version ready for printing later this summer.

Two sections, the sections governing trailers and licensing fees, weren't acted on. The council members will be examining the license fee schedules and may act on those at a later date. Time run out on the meeting before the trailer ordinances could be examined.

The meeting was called to order at 6 p.m. and the regular meeting started at 7:30 p.m.

The council did examine the sections dealing with garbage and trash collection.

Public Works Director Richard Mount suggested the city establish a monthly trash collection day because it may help separate garbage and non-combustible trash from combustible trash and garbage.

Combustible trash and garbage can be burned in the city incinerator, but garden and non-combustible trash must be separated and hauled away, said Mount.

The collection and disposal crews currently have separate much of the trash from the garbage because many Pahokee residents are placing non-combustible and garden trash in their garbage.

He suggested a monthly trash collection day as a solution because it would encourage residents to place their trash out at one time, separate from the garbage.

Mount said separating the trash and garbage makes the incinerator burn "a whole lot more efficiently."

Garden and non-combustible trash won't burn properly in the city incinerator, he said.

Councilman Jon Mock said the city has also gotten into trouble with environmental agencies in the past because it burned the wrong types of waste in the incinerator.

"Where are you gonna keep your trash until trash day, though? In the living room?" asked Councilman Ronnie Graydon.

"Well, I tell you," said City Attorney Mike Stauder. "Pahokee's unique. Most cities don't even collect trash. I know where I live we have to hire somebody to come in and take it away for us."

The revised code may also require residents to remove their 90 gallon garbage containers from the streets in front of their homes the same day the city empties them.

Councilman William E. McKinstry said the city may have a problem enforcing the law if commercial and business establishments are permitted to leave their 300 gallon containers near the roads for collection even after the city empties them, but all the council members agreed the city looks better when the cans are pulled away from the streets.

Graydon asked about a previous suggestion by Mayor Duncan Padgett that the city hire a person to move the cans back.

"That's not a bad idea," said resident William "Frenchy" Johnson. "And while he's at it, he could be policing. You'd get your money out of him."

Johnson added that he thought the law requiring residents to take their cans away from the fronts of their homes may not be necessary. He said he thought most residents would be willing to go along with the idea if they were informed of the council's intention.

Council President Ada Conley said a law requiring the residents to move their cans the same day the city empties them may be a good thing to have on the books in case someone takes advantage of the absence of the regulation.

McKinstry said the law requiring the containers' move after emptying would be more necessary than a law dictating when the container could be moved to the street for collection because most people want to keep their containers close to the back door for use as long as possible.

McKinstry suggested and the rest of the council agreed that trash should be cut smaller and a fee should be levied for any trash load greater than three cubic yards.

Right now, residents could have the city haul trash away for $25 a load while it costs the city about $67 a load to dump it at the land fill.

McKinstry said the city should bill the resident or business for the cost of hauling away any load over three cubic yards.

He added that residents should be cutting their trash, especially garden trash, into smaller pieces for easier, more compact loading.

"We would get a helluva lot more of our yard trash on a load if we had people cut it up in four or five foot lengths instead of letting them drag out 15 or 20 foot long sections," said McKinstry.

The council also decided to stick with its own animal regulations because adoption of the county codes governing animals would include adoption of a leash law.

"Personally, I don't want a leash law," said Conley.

"I don't either," said McKinstry, who explained that he likes the security he receives by allowing his neighbor's dog to run into his yard at night.

"It barks just as well in my yard as it does in his neighbor's at night. And if we have a leash law, he can't get in my yard to do that. That's the only reason I'm against it. And I've talked to a lot of people who are against it."

The councilmen will be reviewing the license fee schedules of Venice, Coconut Creek and Belle Glade in preparation of revising the Pahokee license fee schedule.

"I like Coconut Creek's (schedule) because it's more compact," said City Clerk Betty J. McCoy.

"Well, it's on smaller paper," said City Attorney Mike Stauder.

"Yeah, but it's more lumped together, you know what I mean? Businesses (of the same type) are put together," said McCoy. "The one from Venice is more thorough."

"It looks that way to me," said Conley.

"Yeah, it covers just about everything you can think of. It looks like they put a lot of work into it."

Graydon wanted to know how cities set the different license fees for various occupations.

"I don't know either," said Stauder. "I think in a lot of cases, it's based on what you want and what you don't want in your city. Maybe there are certain things which are peculiar to Pahokee that maybe you'd want to delete or which Venice or Coconut Creek chose to delete."

Incumbents to run

BELLE GLADE - At least two of the three incumbents whose seats are up for election in Belle Glade this year intend to seek re-election, while the third commissioner was unavailable for comment at press time.

"I picked up my packet today," said Commissioner George Goforth, Jr., who represents the east borough. "I'm gonna give it another shot. I enjoyed it. I had a lot of fun. I don't know what type of job I did, but I enjoyed it anyway."

Claude A. Tindall said he also intends to seek re-election to his north borough seat.

"I plan on filing. I'll probably go down there Friday," said Tindall.

Tindall is completing his third term on the city commission.

Commissioner William A. Grear, who represents the west borough, was out of town and unavailable for comment at press time.

The Belle Glade municipal election process starts tomorrow when candidate qualifying begins.

Anyone who wants their name on the ballot for one of the three seats up for grabs in this year's borough election must qualify between July 15 and August 24.

Packets and laws governing municipal elections are available at City Clerk June Boglioli's office in city hall.

The election will be September 13 and any necessary runoff is scheduled for September 20.

Citizens wanting to vote but not already registered have until August 13 to get their names on the voting rolls.

Work will hinder cable reception

Officials with Sunbelt Limited, Inc., the holder of the local cable television franchise, expect subscribers to experience short-term lapses in their service over the next few weeks as the company conducts engineering tests of the local systems.

James Reinsch, one of the owners of the corporation, told the Belle Glade city commission that the engineering tests are the first step in making improvements to the system. Those improvements, which may be completed by October 1, could result in better reception of current signals and the addition of several channels to the system.

Until the upgrading and tests are completed, he said subscribers will frequently experience lapses in their cable reception.

The tests and studies will be conducted Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

"It's not that we're giving poor service. We're upgrading the service," said Reinsch.

"The upgrade is the first step," said James

Brewer, local manager of the system. "We have to get an idea of what we're dealing with. We're gonna have to interrupt some service to get the tests done."

Brewer added that some of the interruptions will be due to the discovery and replacement of old cable and that most of the interruptions will be just a few minutes.

"Anybody that's reasonable should be willing to put up with a little inconvenience in view of the improvements you'll be making," said Mayor Thomas L. Altman.

Reinsch said the improvements to the system could include the addition of two new satellite signal receiving dishes in Belle Glade and Pahokee.

He said the company is looking at the possible addition of channels which feature children's, specialty, news and variety programming.

The current testing will affect Belle Glade and South Bay with testing scheduled to begin in Pahokee later, Reinsch said.

THE NEW EMERGENCY ROOM at Glades General Hospital in Belle Glade was open to the public for touring Sunday. Other parts of the hospital were also open and several demonstrations were given for those made it out.

Fireworks abuse discussed

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee City Council members are considering measures to punish individuals who abuse fireworks and endanger others at the annual July 4 celebration in the future.

Mayor Duncan Padgett Tuesday, July 12 said he wanted to congratulate the chamber of commerce on its celebration the week before, but added there was an improvement he would like to see.

He suggested the city pass an ordinance prohibiting the discharge of firecrackers and fireworks by those attending the festival on the dike between noon and midnight, July 4.

He said any violators could be thrown in jail for 10 hours.

Councilman Ronnie Graydon agreed that the abuse of small fireworks was a problem at the festival and suggested a fine instead of jail.

Diane Hall, chamber president, told the council that she agreed many spectators abused fireworks at the festival and made it dangerous for other bystanders.

She said some individuals were discharging small explosives and throwing fireworks into the crowd gathered to watch the official fireworks display.

Some had thrown fireworks upon and under the tent, she said.

"I almost got hit in the face

Is sewage available for school?

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee City Council is prepared to determine, at the school board's expense, whether sewage facilities would be available at the proposed site for the new Pahokee High School, but Mayor Duncan Padgett thinks the council is trying to make things difficult for the board to locate the school there.

Palm Beach County School Board had asked for a letter from the city stating water and sewage services are available at the site adjacent to the football field. Utilities Director told the council that water was available, but he wasn't sure if sewage was.

The school would either have to hook onto a manhole and pump station on First Street, or a new pump station would have to be installed.

The council accepted the advice of its engineer, James Suddarth, and decided to tell school system officials that it could conduct an engineering study to determine if sewage service was possible if the district would pay for the study.

"I don't think a study is necessary," said Padgett. "There's a manhole right out there.

Anyone with enough sense can go out there and take a look and see that sewage is available. He (Suddarth) can walk out there and see that. He (Councilman Ronnie Graydon) is just using that as an excuse not to cooperate with them (the school board). He doesn't want that school in that neighborhood."

Graydon has publicly stated in the past that he was opposed to the proposed site because of its location and because it would result in about 40 acres leaving the city tax rolls.

"I think these people are going about it backwards anyway," Graydon said of the district's attempt to locate the school there. He said the state hasn't approved the site yet.

Councilman Jon Mock said the school district probably wants to get all of its "ducks in a row."

"I wish the council would make a stand opposed to the site," said Graydon Tuesday night, July 12.

Suddarth and Cross both said the moratorium the city is on that prevents sewage connections probably wouldn't affect this project.

tional election date in that city.

Belle Glade has also decided to retain its own election date, the second Tuesday in September.

Brawl results in injuries

Burks was also taken to the hospital where he was treated and released.

Bowers was arrested and charged with two counts of aggravated battery.

2 arrested in fire

The two decided to call the fire department.

Dowdell said the television was recovered and the incident is still under investigation.

Aggravated battery charged

Phillip was transported to Glades General Hospital and treated.

Man dies in Rim Canal

The medical examiner's office in West Palm Beach conducted an autopsy Sunday, July 10.

How much faster should Harrell be driving?

By JEFF BROWN

SOUTH BAY — South Bay City Commissioner Willie Marshall contends the city isn't moving forward fast enough because it has a lying, incompetent city manager in Lomax Harrell.

Last week, he asked the city commissioners to consider firing Harrell at the next commission meeting July 19.

While considering Marshall's request for Harrell's head, the commissioners should compare the allegations with the facts.

• When Harrell started working with the city in November 1975, the city had no curbs, drainage or sidewalks. A storm drainage system has been installed, not with city funds, but with money acquired through Palm Beach County Community Development.

Community Development funds were also used to install the first sidewalks the city ever had. Harrell successfully approached South Florida Water Management District in an effort to acquire funds for the installation of a boat ramp and picnic tables at the rim canal. Future plans for the ramp area include constructing barbecue pits at the facility, said Harrell.

• Fire insurance rates for the residents of South Bay have been lowered due to improvements to the city fire protection services during Harrell's tenure as city manager and public works director.

Improvements include the addition of an engine and the replacement of a second engine; an increase in the number of fire hydrants from 30 to more than 100 (there is now a hydrant within 500 feet of every house in the city, said Harrell); an increase in the water storage capacity from 100,000 gallons to 1.5 million gallons.

The water distribution system was also improved to enable fire fighting equipment to hook onto it in the event of a fire. According to Harrell, before the improvements, almost the entire system was on two-inch iron lines that had corroded and were leaking. The lines weren't capable of providing enough water for fire fighting, and the leaks were costing the city money in treated water.

The two-inch lines were replaced with six-inch pipes at a cost of $560,000. That bill was paid entirely with a grant from Community Development.

The improvements to the water distribution system and the firefighting services resulted in the city's Insurance Services Office rating dropping from 10 to eight. The higher the rating, the higher the fire insurance rates in that area.

Insurance rates have dropped from 18 to 63 percent in South Bay.

• Community Development picked up most of the tab for the resurfacing of 13,050 of streets in

Analysis

South Bay and the reconstruction of another 9,450 feet. That's almost 4.3 miles, more than half of the streets in the city.

The only cost to the city was about $80,000, said Harrell. He estimated Community Development invested in excess of a million dollars in city road improvements.

Harrell has also received funds from private companies for the resurfacing of NW First Street.

• Improvements to the water treatment and sewage treatment plants were paid for through grants and loans.

The water treatment plant improvements cost $3.2 million. Three quarters of the project was paid for with federal grant money and the rest with loans bearing a five percent rate.

The improvements to the sewage treatment plant also cost $3.2 million. About 45 percent of that was picked up by federal grants, and the rest is being paid off at five percent interest.

• Two parks, the city's first, were built, one on land donated by the school board.

According to Harrell, United States Sugar Corporation donated $180,000 to the construction of the parks. Community Development donated $50,000, Palm Beach County Parks and Recreation Department budgeted $50,000 for it and the city put up about $25,000 in labor and other services toward the construction of the parks.

• The city water tower, built in 1963, wasn't cleaned or refurbished until 1981.

According to Harrell, the tower had to be drained, cleaned and painted.

"It was deteriorating rapidly," said Harrell.

• Forty houses condemned by the Health Department had been destroyed and many junked automobiles had been removed.

• The city, Community Development, Farmers Home Administration and private contractor LaRue Tripp will be entering into a joint venture to develop 20 low-cost houses.

• The Royal Fertilizer Plant in the center of the city had once been the regular parking site of several trucks which created a bad odor in the area, according to Harrell.

• The entire sewage system was smoke tested and all the leaks were repaired in the last six months to save the city on treatment costs.

• Harrell contacted the Florida Department of Transportation which has installed an eight-inch water line between South Bay and Belle Glade for emergency purposes. That cost DOT $100,000.

• Harrell said that when he first came to the city, the finances weren't on as solid a footing as they are now.

Harrell credits the city commission and staff with most of the success in the city since 1975. "They've been dedicated, they've been loyal, they've been hard working," he said of the city employees. "For the city to be so damn small, we've been pretty successful. We've received more money from grants per capita than any other city in the county."

County balks at SR 80 improvements

The Palm Beach County Board of Commissioners balked at floating $22 million bond issue for improving state road 80, but approved three other local road improvement projects on the coast June 28.

The $22 million bond issue would have been used for three road improvement projects, including the four-lane a portion of state road 80 between the coast and Belle Glade.

The commissioners rejected the bonds as an expensive form of financing that they weren't willing to assume in order to roads the state is responsible for.

Commissioner Bill J. Bailey and Belle Glade Mayor Thomas L. Altman both spoke in favor of the proposed bond issue, with Altman stressing the critical need for improvements to the route.

Bailey said the state had made large commitments for additional work on the road when the county had planned to do a portion, and called the commission's decision not to float the bonds "reneging."

Chairman Peggy Evatt countered that her sources indicated the state very well might pick up the entire project. She said she could not justify spending county funds for state roads now that county funding shortfalls on needed roads had been documented.

In another action, the commissioner approved three coastal road improvement projects: engineering studies on rehabilitation of the El Camino Real Boulevard; engineering of the four-laning of 45th Street for 1.75 miles from Interstate 95 to Haverrill and paving and improvements on Ocala and Osceola drives in Juno Beach.

"And What Not"

What I did on my vacation

There's nothing quite like the first day back at work after a two-week vacation. Thank Heaven, I considered calling the EMT's to assist me out of bed the first morning. Then reconsidered and set fire to the mattress instead.

Let me tell you I did not have one of my two-week journeys to faraway places with fun-filled days and romantic nights — unless that's your idea of a weekend jump to Disney World with a six-year-old pipsqueak-powered grandson as the tour guide. The two days were full of fun, but the nights were filled with the pain and suffering of my obsolete body parts, reactivated for 12-hour forced marches on the double.

After two days my beloved whirling dervish moved on to enliven the scenery elsewhere, leaving me as the walking wounded. There's a heartache to all partners but the pain doesn't usually extend to your arches, sacroiliac, bunions, and ears.

Two days of total bed rest and no visitors revived me for the rest of my fortnightly — which was what you'd call a moving experience. Because that's what I did. I moved.

If you think moving out of one apartment into another one 40 feet away on the same floor is the easiest move to make, you haven't tried it. The fact of the matter is that when you move even one mile away, you pack your worldly belongings into all the cartons you can scavenge up, load them onto the mule or whatever creature is at hand, and transport them en masse.

When the move is "just down the hill" it's a total trip of 75 miles, to and fro, one armored at a haul. Next time I will bring the mule inside. Although it's possible I did and I'll find him (her?) lying under a pile of belongings in one apartment or the other.

Add, also, to my vacation one learning experience. Experts say there are some things, once learned, you never forget. I think bicycle riding and roller skating are among them. I know now that frosting a cake is not.

It's probably ten years since I've touched spatula to baked cake and swirled the creamy confection on. It's definitely going to be ten years until I do it again. Why, in the middle of moving, I decided to bake a cake, can only be attributed as an effort to escape through temporary insanity.

For the sake of the experts, here are some of the things you can learn and forget: Not to add unlimited liquid when you have limited powdered sugar. Not to have the beater on high speed when it hits the powdered sugar. Not to leave all the clean silver flatware lying beside the cake you are frosting with icing that's more liquid than solid. Not to stand three feet back to check the speed of the flow while carrying the dripping spatula with you. Not to trust that putting nuts on the cake will button down the frosting which is flowing over the sides of the cake pan, making tributaries into the silverware and thence cascading to the floor and over your feet.

I probably wouldn't have brought this whole subject up if everyone didn't keep asking me, "How was your vacation?" Now they know.

We are impressed with Harrell's record

Lomax Harrell's future as city manager of South Bay will be decided Tuesday, July 19.

City Commissioner Willie Marshall has made it clear he wants Harrell's fired, claiming the city hasn't progressed with Harrell in charge. He said Harrell's hordes funds that could be used for improvements and that the city manager lies to the commissioners.

When Harrell started working for the city in November 1975, South Bay didn't have a storm drainage system, sidewalks or curbs.

Fire insurance rates were out of sight for most residents.

The sewage and water distribution systems needed improvements that would cost upwards of seven million dollars.

Now, South Bay, under the stewardship of Harrell, has seen over half the streets in the city repaired, resurfaced or reconstructed and several more blocks scheduled for work within the near future.

The sewage and water treatment plants and the water distribution systems have received or are receiving attention.

The Insurance Services Office has lowered its rating of South Bay from 10 to eight, resulting in a decrease in insurance rates from 18 to 63 percent.

Two parks have been built and dedicated in South Bay, which had no recreation facilities to speak of before Harrell started working with the city.

A boat ramp and picnic area have been built on the rim canal.

A 20-home low-cost housing development has been scheduled for the area. How much did this cost South Bay?

Not much. Most of the improvements have been made with grant money from Community Development, Farmers' Home Administration, South Florida Water Management District, or even private corporations.

If Harrell has chosen in the past not to use money for a repaving project, it was because money from another source was available to pay for the project instead, freeing the municipal funds for other projects.

Since he came to the city, South Bay has received more grant money per capita than any other city in the county.

We see improvements all over South Bay and feel Harrell should be commended, not put on trial for his job.

We urge the other city commissioners to ignore Marshall's request for Harrell's dismissal and retain a city manager which has done much to improve South Bay.

Commission ignores promises

Hope may spring eternal, but so do broken promises.

It wasn't too long ago that the county commissioners started talking about four-laning a section of state road 80. A small stretch east of 20 Mile Bend, but at least it was more than anyone else was doing.

Now, the county commissioners decided to go back on their word and not float the bonds necessary to fund that work.

Seems they don't like the idea of four-laning a road the state owns unless it's on the coast.

They say they don't have enough money to make all the needed road repairs and improvements in the county, so they had to cut some of the projects. Like the ones not on the coast.

Never mind that people die on the roads because they're two-lane monstrosities tight against a canal. There's no where to go when you come face-to-face with a vehicle trying to make a pass in your lane.

But no need to worry or cry over dead people who used to not live on the coast.

Going his own way

Watching Phillip Petunia (not his real name) smoke a pipe was a fascinating experience.

Phil, a classmate of mine at St. Augustine High School in the early '60s, would drag his pipe out at football games and smoke it.

He got away with it because 1. He wasn't a player, and 2. He sat in the bleachers in a crowd where it was difficult for teachers to reach him.

Phil always seemed a little older and more worldly than the rest of us 10th graders. For one thing, he shaved every day, while most of us were still cultivating peach fuzz.

Phil seemed grown up, almost collegiate, as he pulled out his pipe, expertly compacted the tobacco, and then lit it, working up a cloud of tantalizing smoke.

He never gagged on the smoke. If anything, he seemed to enjoy it as much as an ordinary kid would a hamburger.

Phil had lots of interests in addition to pipe smoking, including girls and track.

While he could have been successful in both pursuits, he had more luck with the girls.

He became academically ineligible for the track team before the season even started (not because of the girls but because of lack of study). And while he could have been the best half miler on the team, he never competed in the first meet.

It was a pity because I listened to many of his expertly told tales about scientific training methods and running tactics. I was looking forward to seeing him run.

I suppose with the bad grades, Phil decided there were better ways to spend his time.

So he quit school and went to work as a horse and buggy driver, guiding tourists who came to St. Augustine past the restored ruins. For all I know, he smoked his pipe as he explained the area's history, using the pipe stem as a pointer while his horse clomped down St. George Street and along the bay front.

I haven't heard from Phil in about 20 years, but I assume that he eventually became owner of the sightseeing company and married a millionaire's daughter. That's life.

Phil had little lasting influence on me. Although I admired his talent with a pipe, I never had any inclination to follow him.

Even though I thought smoking was like playing Russian roulette.

I would have liked to have seen him put down his pipe, make passing grades, earn a spot on the track team, and graduate with the rest of us. But each of us has to live his own life.

Parents fight for equal time...

Remember that ominous voice on the TV just before the late news on Friday or Saturday night when the announcer says, "It's 10 o'clock. Do you know where your children are?"

Did that public service announcer ever give you an uneasy feeling—like he had just driven by the local video arcade and seen your children misbehaving when you thought they were at a friend's slumber party?

Parents are beginning to realize they can't assume that no serious harm will come to their children, especially when it comes to drugs or alcohol.

While we must have faith in our children for them to grow into strong, self-reliant adults, we don't have to trust the environment they are growing up in.

More than 3,000 parent groups have formed in this country to counter what they see as "undue influences" on their children's immature decision-making powers. Each of these groups has its own story about how it got started, and what it has set out to do.

It is the diversity of interests, though, which has brought about so much activity in the last three years. Collectively, these parents groups realized this national problem hasn't somehow skipped their own communities.

Children not immune
The point that children are not immune to the problem may have been brought home to them by a tragic, logically publicized teenage car accident on prom night, or a fatal overdose right in their neighborhood.

Maybe their sensibilities were shocked when they found out those exotic gadgets in the mall gift shop are used as drug paraphernalia. Maybe they had an innocent backyard barbecue, and half the guests showed up "high."

After a little education from the group, most parents are amazed at their ignorance about their children's lifestyle.

With the number of single and two-working parent families, many suburban neighborhoods are populated only by adolescents during the day.

Of course, these large, neighborhood peer groups are a normal, healthy part of growing up. Teenagers naturally need a wide audience to try their ideas and attitudes on. Their sense of self-worth is strengthened by peer acceptance.

The danger in this situation is that the values of the group tend to be infectious. Studies indicate that the number of peers who use drugs is a major influence on a youngster's decision to also use.

Also, a drug-using child tends to limit his or her friends to other users—leading to the false conclusion that "everybody's doing it." This epidemic quickly spreads to younger children.

Sex and role models
It may sound old-fashioned to link rock music to drug use, but that drug references are not as common in song lyrics as they were in the '70s.

However, publicity about rock stars using illegal drugs is still prominent.

Teenagers see rock stars as talented, creative and popular—attributes they strive for. They may draw the conclusion that drugs may enhance these qualities. What they don't see are the legal or health consequences resulting from drug use.

Television often treats drug use as an acceptable social outlet. Even shows which depict drug use as having serious consequences often do so indirectly through the plot. Younger viewers can miss the subtlety.

Usually, parents and children watch different programs on separate sets, so there is no opportunity to reinforce the point of the story through discussions.

Parents fight for time

With all these messages telling teens that drugs are fun, harmless and popular, it's no wonder so many parents are fighting for "equal time" to make the other side of the story heard in their communities, state legislatures and by national advertisers and broadcasters.

While not every community may have had a teenage drug problem surface, many communities are realizing that prevention is still the best bargain.

Will rice save our mucklands?

BELLE GLADE—

South of Lake Okechobee in the northern part of the Everglades lies the largest expanse of farmed organic "muck" soil in the United States. Lots of sun, water and warm winters have made this 680,000-acre area one of the most productive in the United States. Last year, growers produced commodities totaling $600,000 million.

But this land is vanishing. It's not being lost to urban encroachment, but to the biological oxidation that occurs when organic soil is drained to grow sugarcane and winter vegetables, the predominant crops in the area.

An Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS) soil scientist believes that aquatic crops like rice will slow the oxidation process and best prepare Glades growers for the day the muck stops here.

Everglades muck is decomposing at the rate of one inch per year, according to studies by Dr. George Snyder of IFAS. By the year 2000 it is estimated that 600,000 acres will be less than three-feet in thickness, 46 percent of it less than one-foot from the underlying limestone bedrock.

"Whenever organic soil is drained, oxygen enters and there is a biological decomposition of the soil. It is converted to air, water and carbon dioxide. Consequently, the soil is irretrievably lost," he said.

Since the only way to stop oxidation of muckland is to keep it saturated with water, Snyder is encouraging growers to incorporate summer-grown aquatic crops into their growing schedules.

Experimental plantings of rice at the IFAS research center here have led Snyder to conclude that rice shows the most promise as an aquatic crop for the Everglades. His findings show that rice can be grown in rotation with sugarcane and winter vegetables at profits that range from $30 to $265 an acre, depending on current market value.

The average Florida consumes 10 to 12 pounds of rice a year, according to market surveys. It would take 25,000 acres of a single crop of rice to meet demands in this state, not including demand for beer production," says Snyder. He added that insufficient milling and drying facilities are now barriers to large-scale rice production in Florida.

Other aquatic crops Snyder has grown experimentally and found suitable for the Ever-

Alpha awards program

BELLE GLADE - The Western Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic's Alpha program members will have their third annual awards program at the Lake Shore Civic Center, Thursday, July 21 at 7 p.m.

The theme for this year's program will be "The Future of Tomorrow," according to Joe Amato, executive director for the Mental Health Clinic.

Amato said the purpose of this event is to acknowledge those students who have successfully completed the Alpha Program at Lake Shore and Belle Glade Elementary Schools.

He said special recognition will be given to those individuals that participated in the Summer Booster Sessions.

INITIATED at the Grand Assembly of the Rainbow from Belle Glade were (left) Tammy Woodward, Geri Haulcomb, and Sheila Greenaway.

STATE MOTHER ADVISOR, Mrs. Ellen Clark and Grand Worthy Advisor for the state, Jennifer Stacy, were honored by other members of the Grand Assembly of the International Order of the Rainbow for Girls at the thirty seventh annual session in Tampa last week. Both are from Belle Glade.

Grand Assembly held in Tampa

BELLE GLADE - Members of Belle Glade Assembly One of the Rainbow for Girls and their families recently returned from the Grand Assembly of Florida International Order of the Rainbow for Girls in Tampa.

The 37th annual session started the week of June 25 at the Curtis-Hixon Convention Center in Tampa.

Jennifer Stacy of Belle Glade was honored as the Grand Worthy Advisor for the state and Ellen Clark received special recognition as the state Mother Advisor.

The local assembly was recognized as having donated the largest sum of money for the Grand Worthy Advisor Charity Fund for the Aphasia Clinic. They donated $520.

Susie Alford of Belle Glade received first place in funds raised through selling Luv Pops, with Janet Clayton receiving third place in the state and Laura Landing receiving fifth place.

Those from Belle Glade attending the state assembly were: Stacy, Landing, Judi Austin, Deena Venos, Ann Fowler, Vicki Fowler, Susie Alford, Lee Wester, Christine Tucker, Lourdes Soler, Kimberly Griffis, Debbie Soles, Terry Towell and Michelle Laster.

Sheila Greenaway, Geni Haulcomb and Tammy Woodward, all of Belle Glade, were also present and were initiated at the Grand Assembly.

Adults attending were Don and Ellen Clarke; Robert and Evelyn Allen, Jr.; Dale Griffis; Cindy Baez; and Helen Stacey; Don Marie Means and and Jo Aspey; Judi Carey Snow.

Rev. Sister Nicholas HEALER and ADVISOR

THE RELIGIOUS HOLY WOMAN HEALER, GOD'S MESSENGER WHO GUARANTEES TO HEAL THE SICK AND THE AILING, TO REMOVE ALL SUFFERING AND BAD LUCK FROM YOUR BODY, SHE WILL CALL YOUR ENEMIES BY NAME AND TELL YOU WHO TO KEEP AWAY FROM. SHE IS A RELIGIOUS AND HOLY WOMAN WHO WILL SHOW YOU WITH YOUR OWN EYES HOW SHE WILL REMOVE SORROW, SICKNESS AND PAIN, AND ALL BAD LUCK. THE TOUCH OF HER HAND WILL HEAL YOU. THIS DIVINE HEALER HAS THE GOD GIVEN POWER TO HEAL BY PRAYER. ARE YOU SUFFERING? ARE YOU SICK? DO YOU NEED HELP? DO YOU HAVE BAD LUCK?

Inman-Police announce plans

BELLE GLADE - Sheila Lorraine Inman of Belle Glade and Franklin Police of South Bay plan to exchange wedding vows this Saturday, July 16 at 7 p.m. at the Mt. Calvary Baptist Church in Belle Glade.

Miss Inman is the daughter of Calvin and Mary Johnson of Belle Glade and Police is the son of W. H. Police of South Bay and Clemmie Thomas of Clewiston.

The double ring ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Leon Camel.

The church is located at 989 Canal Street, Belle Glade. All friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend the wedding ceremony.

MISS INMAN

Guest speaker to deliver sermon

BELLE GLADE - The Rev. Roy (Rick) Carter, Jr., a theological student at Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, Kentucky, will deliver the message at the 11 a.m. worship service at the Community United Methodist Church Sunday, July 17. The Community United Methodist Church is located at 401 SW First Street in Belle Glade.

Swager to list

Thomas Swager, a freshman from Belle Glade, has been named to the spring term Dean's List at Maryville College.

Swager, son of Mr.

and Mrs. Thomas Swager, Sr., is majoring in political science at the college. Maryville is a private, four-year liberal arts college located in Maryville, Tenn.

Alpha awards program

BELLE GLADE -- The Western Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic's Alpha program members will have their third annual awards program at the Lake Shore Civic Center, Thursday, July 21 at 7 p.m.

The theme for this year's program will be "The Future of Tomorrow," according to Joe Amato, executive director for the Mental Health Clinic.

Amato said the purpose of this event is to acknowledge those students who have successfully completed the Alpha Program at Lake Shore and Belle Glade Elementary Schools.

He said special recognition will be given to those individuals that participated in the Summer Booster Sessions.

INITIATED at the Grand Assembly of the Rainbow from Belle Glade were (left) Tammy Woodward, Geri Haulcomb, and Sheila Greenaway.

STATE MOTHER ADVISOR, Mrs. Ellen Clark and Grand Worthy Advisor for the state, Jennifer Stacy, were honored by the International Order of the Rainbow for Girls at the thirty seventh annual session in Tampa last week. Both are from Belle Glade.

Grand Assembly held in Tampa

BELLE GLADE -- Members of Belle Glade Assembly One of the Rainbow for Girls and their families recently returned from the Grand Assembly of Florida International Order of the Rainbow for Girls in Tampa.

The 37th annual session started the week of June 25 at the Curtis-Hixon Convention Center in Tampa. Jennifer Stacy of Belle Glade was honored as the Grand Worthy Advisor for the state and Ellen Clark received special recognition as the state Mother Advisor.

The local assembly was recognized as having donated the largest sum of money for the Grand Worthy Advisor Charity Fund for the Aphasia Clinic. They donated $520.

Susie Alford of Belle Glade received first place in funds raised through selling Luv Pops, with Janet Clayton receiving third place in the state and Laura Landing receiving fifth place.

Those from Belle Glade attending the state assembly were: Stacy, Landing, Judi Austin, Deena Vegas, Ann Fowler, Vicki Fowler, Susie Alford, Lee Wester, Christine Tucker, Lourdes Soler, Kimberly Griffiths, Debbie Soles Terry Towell and Michelle Laster.

Sheila Greenaway, Geni Haulcomb and Tammy Woodward, all of Belle Glade, were also present and were initiated at the Grand Assembly.

Adults attending were Don and Ellen Clarke; Robert and Evelyn Allen, Jr.; Dale Griffis; Cindy Baez; Marie Means and Jo Aspey; Judi Carey Snow.

Players of the week

Priest, Navarro show power

"Two outfielders powered their teams to victory and picked up the players of the week honors last week.

Danny Priest, the left fielder for Glades Ag Service, tried to bat the circuit against Everglades Farm Equipment last week and fall short by a homer.

En route, he batted in four runs and scored three with two singles, a double and a triple.

The victory, one of two Ag Service victories last week, upped the team's record to 7-4, tying it with P&W Farms for fourth place.

Ag Service won the other game when Glade and Grove forfeited.

In the A Division, Jacinto Navarro, Sugar Supply's shortfielder, went four for four against Carter Chevrolet. He connected for three singles and a double, scored twice and batted in three runs as Sugar Supply beat Carter Chevrolet 10-9.

The victory gave Sugar Supply a 2-8 record and dropped Carter Chevrolet to 1-6.

A NO NAMES softball player takes a swing at a Theo's pitch last week.

Dance slated

Members of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity are planning a disco dance for Friday, July 29, at the Belle Glade Municipal Civic Center starting at 9 p.m.

AN F and W Farms fielder catches a fly ball against Crosby Mobile Homes last week.

with a roman candle," said Padgett. "I went down and told them 'You hit me with that roman candle and I'll shoot you in the face with a pistol.' It was a nice day, but it did take a lot of the pleasure out of it, wondering if you were gonna get your head blown off."

Appeal results in forfeit

BELLE GLADE -- Seminole Supply has been credited with a loss and Glades Ag Service has earned a victory in a game which the Seminole Supply Oldtimers refused to complete June 30.

Mike Underwood, the assistant recreation director with the city, said the Oldtimers forfeited the game when they walked off the field and refused to complete the game. They left the field after protesting the game since one of the umpires wasn't certified by the Amateur Softball Association.

Underwood said the protest wasn't legitimate because he never assured the teams in the league that ASA certified umpires would be used. He said all umpires must be authorized by the city and could become authorized by completing a clinic at the beginning of the softball season.

Gaining ASA certification is a long process and if the city used only ASA certified umpires, there may not be enough, he explained.

The umpire at first base that the Oldtimers issued their protest over was authorized by the city, said Underwood.

The league rules also don't state that only ASA umpires would be used in all league games.

Even if the Oldtimers had won the protest, they would have lost the game because they left the field and refused to finish the game, according to Underwood and the other members of the protest committee.

According to the committee, all games must be completed even after they are protested. Any team which refused to complete a game after an umpire orders play to resume forfeits the game.

The Oldtimers left the field in the sixth inning with the score at 5-6 in favor of Glades Ag Service. They protested the game because the umpire at first base wasn't ASA certified. When the home plate umpire asked if they were ready to resume the game, the Oldtimers walked off the field.

Tennis clinic scheduled

BELLE GLADE -- Tennis clinics and a women's doubles league have been scheduled by the city recreation department.

A clinic for children between seven and 15 years old has been scheduled for Airport Park from Monday, July 25 to Friday, July 29.

An instructor will conduct the clinic every day from 9 to 11:30 a.m. It will include singles and doubles play. Cost for that clinic is $35 per person.

There will be free children's clinic Saturday, July 23 at Lakeshore Park from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

A four-week women's doubles league will start Tuesday, August 2 at Airport Park.

The $25 per person charge includes 30 minutes of instruction starting at 8:30 a.m., followed by two hours of doubles play.

Glades Ag assaults EFE for 11-2 win

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADES Frank Phillips had a no-hitter going into the fourth inning and Danny Priests batted in four runs and scored three on two singles, a double and a triple as Glades Ag Service mugged Everglades Farm Equipment for a 11-2 victory last Thursday, July 7.

Phillips allowed only one E.F.E. batter to reach base in the first three innings, walking Timmy Lester with one out in the first inning.

He had retired nine batters in a row before Lester broke up the no-hitter by beating out an infield grounder for a single.

While Frank Phillips and the defense were busy bopping down the E.F.E. batters, the Ag Service batters were battering the opponents for 18 hits. Seven E.F.E. errors also contributed to the loss.

Ag Service lead-off man Wayne Meadows reached base on an error by third baseman Tom Yancey in the first.

Manual Phillips was safe at first when rightfielder Ronald Davis made an error.

Danny Priests batted in Meadows with a base rap to right field, and advanced to second on a throwing error by Raymond Cunningham in right centerfield.

Randy Worth brought Priests and Phillips home with a double into centerfield.

Ag Service added three runs in the third with four hits and two E.F.E. errors.

Priests doubled to lead off the inning and advanced to third on rightfielder Davis' second error of the night.

Priests stroled home on a single into left field by Worth.

Terry Agnew tapped an infield single to advance the runners and he advanced to second when the first baseman, Mayon McMullen, bobbed the throw from second.

John Hood reached base on an error by Yancey at third to lead off the top of the fourth inning for Ag Service, but he was forced out at second when Meadows grounded to the pitcher.

The next batter, Manual Phillips, also grounded to the pitcher. Marvin Bain relayed the ball to second baseman Robert Throckmorton who threw it to first baseman McMullen for the double play to end the top of the inning.

Lester ended Frankie Phillips' no-hitter bid in the bottom of the inning, but he was forced out at second when Mayon McMullen grounded to first baseman Randy Worth.

In the top of the fifth inning, Danny Priests, who had earlier singled and doubled, added a triple with a long line drive into right center field.

He was brought home when Randy Worth singled into left field. Worth was forced out at second when Agnew grounded to the pitcher.

Agnew advanced to second when Vanschoick singled into left field.

Vanschoick was forced out at second when Griffin grounded to third, but Agnew reached third base safely.

The next batter, Ricky Chevalier, flew out to center to end the inning.

E.F.E. scored its only two runs in the bottom of the inning, touching Ag Service for four hits and an error.

Marvin Bain and Tom Yancey led off with back-to-back singles and Ron Davis singled with one out to load the bases.

When rightfielder John Hood caught up with the ball, he bobbed it, allowing Bain to score from third.

Ag Service added four runs to end the scoring in the top of the sixth.

Frankie Phillips walked to lead off the inning. One out later, Meadows singled to right. Manual Phillips loaded the bases with a single to left.

Danny Priests batted in all the runners with a single to right field. He tried to advance on the throw from the outfield, but was thrown out at second.

cond for the second out.

Randy Worth singled to center and Terry Agnew followed with a triple to right field to drive him in.

Vanschoick flew out to shortfielder Cunningham to end the inning.

In the bottom of the inning, Mayon McMullen singled with one out, but was forced out at second when Allen Cumpton grounded to the shortstop.

Cumpton reached second on a single to left center by Bain, but Yancey ended the inning with a fly out to right field.

E.F.E. pitcher Marvin Bain caught Dave Griffin looking at a called third strike to lead off the seventh inning.

Chevalier followed with a single to right-center. He advanced to second when the shortfielder made a bad throw back to the infield on Frankie Phillips' fly out.

John Hood was called out on strikes to end the inning and become Bain's third strike out of the game.

Saving the muck—

glades include now-imported specialty vegetables like water spinach, water celery and watercress. Large ranges of taro, a potato-like tuber, could also be grown as a feed supplement or biomass fuel.

"Agriculture will always be important in the Everglades," he said. "But as the soil becomes more shallow, there will come a time when it simply will not be economical to grow some crops by the current methods. As time passes it will be more feasible to grow some type of aquatic crops."

In the meantime, some growers in the Everglades are trying to delay that day as long as possible. There are now some 10,000 acres devoted to pinstripe rice production. Raymond Roth, who owns a Belle Glade vegetable operation with his father, kept 600 of his 2,300 acres in rice last year. He estimates he made "a couple thousand dollars profit" despite depressed prices. But to Roth, profit is not the issue. "The idea with rice is to break even. If you can flood your land for free and have productive work for your labor all year long and you can get your money back, that's enough," he said.

"The important thing is that you improve your land," he said.

Besides the obvious loss of fertile soil, decomposing muck causes the land to subside, undermining the foundations of buildings and roads. A common sight here is a house built on pilings, its foundation now so far from the ground that a makeshift carport has been created under the house by the subsidizing soil. In addition, oxidizing muck releases nitrogen compounds, which become pollutants in drainage water.
